Clubs and Organizations

The Chamber has many resources, and many folks seem to think we have all the answers, and we certainly try, but at the very least we try to be able to make an appropriate referral. As a community service, we keep a list of the area clubs and organizations, such as support groups, service clubs, sports leagues, scouts, etc., but it is always in need of updating as contact information changes. If you are the principal contact of a community organization, we'd like to encourage you to check our list, see if you're on it, and make sure the information is up to date.

To view the list, visit www.eldoradocounty.org Choose the Community Information drop down menu, and select "Clubs and Orgs".

If you would like to be included in this resource or need to make changes, please email the info to: admin@eldoradocounty.org

Rising Temperatures: Protect Outdoor Workers From Heat Illness

By Katie Culliton

Heat illness can develop into serious illness or death. Cal/OSHA reminds employers to protect their outdoor workers from heat illness as temperatures reach triple digits in parts of California. Workers should be encouraged to take preventative cool-down breaks in the shade.

"During heat waves, employers must closely observe their employees for signs and symptoms of heat illness," said Cal/OSHA Chief Juliann Sum, in a statement. "As always, workers should be encouraged to drink water frequently and take preventative cool-down rest breaks in the shade when they feel the need to do so."

Outdoor workplaces include agriculture, construction, road work, landscaping, storage yards and other operations. California's heat illness prevention regulation requires employers with outdoor workers to:

- Develop and implement an effective written heat illness prevention plan that includes emergency response procedures.
- Train all employees and supervisors on heat illness prevention.
- Provide free, fresh, pure, suitably cool water so that each worker can drink at least one quart of water per hour. Encourage workers to do so.
- Provide shade when workers request it and when temperatures exceed 80 degrees. Encourage workers to take a cool-down rest in the shade for at least five minutes. Workers should not wait until they feel sick to cool down.

Heat illness can develop into serious illness or death. Supervisors need to be effectively trained on emergency procedures in case a worker gets sick so the sick employee receives treatment immediately.

Cal/OSHA provides online information on heat illness prevention requirements and training materials. The agency also offers a Heat Illness Prevention e-tool with real world examples of heat illness and best practices for an effective heat illness prevention plan.
